Resignation of Nigel Thorpe, General Manager Livestock

After a long and successful career within the PGG Wrightson livestock business, Nigel Thorpe has made a decision that it is time for a change of direction and lifestyle, and has resigned from his position as General Manager, Livestock.

Nigel was re-appointed as General Manager Livestock three years ago with a brief to stabilise and refocus the livestock business with an emphasis, internally and externally, on getting "back to basics". Nigel has successfully executed on that objective and has laid sound foundations to improve and grow the livestock business.

Chief Executive Officer, Mark Dewdney said that Nigel is widely respected by clients, his team and peers alike and while the PGG Wrightson was disappointed to lose his services to the business we all wished him the very best for the future.

While a date had not yet been determined it was likely that Nigel would continue in the business through much of the current financial year or until the appointment of a successor is confirmed.
