Commentary,

There was very spirited bidding today at the North Island wool sale. The small amount of better coloured wools that have been absent from the market commanded strong attention selling at prices not seen for a long time. Oddments remained relatively settled in price and there was a push in value for some longer types that have been discounted for a number of months. Special mention would have to go to a line of wool from Woodville which sold at a very good price. All things considered, I was very happy with the outcome of today's sale.

Kind regards,
