Today's North Island wool auction was a very small offering covering a variety of wool types with most showing a fair amount of vegetable matter contamination. Again the wool sale was affected by the global uncertainty and the raising NZD and its effect on New Zealand trade.

A very small offering of good colour second shear again was in high demand. Lambs wool still made up a large portion of today's sale where the value continued to fall with the deterioration of quality.

There is uncertainty around whether the next North Island sale will go ahead as wool flow has eased up and weather has disrupted operations.
