“ Limited volumes coming forward for sale continue to underpin the recovery in strong wool, particularly second-shear and oddment types. Competition remained supportive across these categories.

The first offering of merino wool for the new season opened to a strong, competitive bench of buyers, providing an encouraging start to the season.

Mid-micron styles also sold well, considering the easing in the Australian market earlier in the week. Overall, the market maintained a positive and confident tone. Dave Burridge, National Auction Manager
